

WHAT DOES AN EDUCATIONAL PSYCHOLOGIST DO?

They will probably talk to you about your views and opinions.

They may ask you to do some work, which might be reading or spelling or solving some puzzles.

With your permission they'll tell your teachers and parents what they have learnt about you from working with you.

They'll write a report about the work they've done with you and they'll suggest more support for you if you need it. The report will be sent to you and your family and anyone else who should see it.

Educational psychologists work with children, young people and adults. They will talk to you to get your views about your strengths and difficulties. They might ask you to do some puzzles or tests to find out about your skills. When the work is finished they'll recommend more support for you if you need it.
